PROBLEMS ENCOUNTERED DURING BREEDING SEASON

Orders: Causes and Cures

Disease caused by protozoa from the genus Eimeria. These are common in the diet of canaries, leading to digestive and general health problems. Contaminated water, and faecal matter spread coccidiosis. Stress lowers immunity, making birds more susceptible to infection. Bright cages prior to the breeding season to "get them fit" reduces the immune system. Bringing in new birds as outcrosses can introduce coccidia. They should be treated with your choice of an anti-coccidial.
